

Alexandria Gazette

SATURDAY EVENING, DEC. 20.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.—A pretty and accomplished widow, living at Jackson, Miss., met at Saratoga last summer a handsome and intelligent widower from Norfolk, Virginia. A brief flirtation led to an engagement, and the lovers separated with the understanding that she was to return to her home and break the news to another lover, who had won her hand before she went to Saratoga. But it was not so easy to be off with the old love as it had been on with the new. The Jackson gentleman was wild, and despairing, and she should marry him or else remain a widow. Letters from Jackson to Norfolk, came from Norfolk to Jackson; and day by day, until the postal sacks were menaced with spontaneous combustion; final result—flight of the widow from her home and proposed secret marriage at Baltimore.

The arrangements were perfect, with one exception. No allowance was made for the weather. The storm came on, the rain poured down and the old clapped her hands in the valleys of Virginia. The lady reached the trysting point forty-eight hours behind time, and in a state of mental and nervous collapse. He was there to meet her; she trembled, sighted, teared, cried, waited two days, and finally resolved to return to Mississippi. She took the hotel proprietor into her confidence, and after settling her account, started for the Camden station; but as she was stopping at the Camden station, she met her lover. He was the gentleman from Norfolk, who had been tearing his hair and looking for her in every train from the South, except the one by which she had come. They were married that afternoon at St. Charles Church, and went down the bay that night. One of the first purchases which they will make on going to housekeeping will be an almanac.
